

Corrective Teaching combines descriptions of behavior with consequences and practice to help parents respond to a child's negative behavior.

When to use Corrective Teaching:

- Basically you use Corrective Teaching any time your kids do something they're not supposed to do.

Exercise #8.1

On the lines below, write down five of your child's common problem behaviors that you would like to change.

1. _____
2. _____
3. _____
4. _____
5. _____

Reminders for choosing negative consequences:

- They are delivered immediately and are over quickly
- They fit the "crime" (they are of appropriate size)
- They are mild and consistent
- They are used along with positive consequences
