

Problem Solving – Roommates

Dear _____,

I have a problem that involves two girls who share a room.

One of the girls is very neat in appearance, clean, well organized and tries to keep the house rules.

The other girl is sloppy, always has a messy room, and doesn't show too much concern for the house rules.

By putting those two girls together we had hoped that the one girl would act as a good model for the other youth. But it didn't work out that way. Instead, what we get is a lot of fighting and arguing, and constant complaints!

What would be a good solution to this problem that would prove to be effective and fair to both girls?